or low-income families

82,290 days of care

CTL uses the Aspen Ascend two-generation approach, working with both parent and child in family services to achieve long-term stability, ultimately disrupting the cycle of poverty.

Education is the single most effective tool for breaking the generational hold of poverty - especially early childhood education. Center for Transforming Lives provides high-quality, affordable, year-round education at multiple early childhood education centers throughout Tarrant County. The program provides literacy-rich, child-centered classrooms with low child-to-teacher ratios, individualized care, healthy daily meals, abundant outdoor time, and social strengthening activities.

Program fees are on an income-based sliding scale and are offered at no costs for families experiencing homelessness. Center for Transforming Lives' early childhood education program is a powerful two-generation approach to disrupting the cycle of poverty. When children are educated and parents supported, economic stability improves.

CTL provides Early Head Start and Head Start in Tarrant County. The partnership provides center- and home-based, high-quality, early childhood development for over 654 infants to 5-year-olds living in poverty and homelessness. Early Head Start-designated children and their families receive health, mental health and nutrition supports, and intensive case management coordinated by full-time family advocates at each of our centers.
